Alabama paper moves into new home

The Opelika-Auburn (Ala.) News recently moved into its new 39,000-square-foot offices and production facility. The facility touts a Manugraph DGM Advantage press; STC-700 high-infeed compensating stacker from Gammerler and a K&M Newspaper Services remanufactured NP1472 inserter and belt conveyor.

Dario Designs' handled all of the front-end work for the new facility, which included programming and masterplanning, as well as designing the new facility. David Hogan served as lead architect and Charles Mitsis as the project manager.
